The Menace of Communism

The Sixth International Communist Congress held in Moscow this year declared its avowed policy "to concentrate Communist propaganda on the young people of the world," not on the young people of Russia, or even of Europe, but of the world.

Has that declaration any meaning for Canada? Is it one that the people of Canada need pay any attention to, or in regard to which they should take action?

Communism thrives where there is oppression, injustice, extreme poverty, lack of employment resulting in enforced idleness, and inevitably arising from these conditions, general discontent. Stalin still finds mischief for idle hands to do, and there is nothing quite so mischievous in the world today as Communism and its many pernicious doctrines.

Communism, therefore, found fertile ground in Russia owing to the centuries old oppressions and injustices of the old Tsarist regime, during which the most abject poverty and ignorance continued among the masses of the people alongside an extraordinary wealth and a few individuals in forms of extravagance and luxury. The added sufferings, sacrifices and horrors of the Great War were all that was necessary to set the country aflame and provide the Communists with the opportunity they had long been awaiting.

In Canada, unlike Russia, there is no oppression of the people; injustice is not tolerated, and has only to be exposed to be remedied; cases of extreme poverty are rare indeed, when compared with the conditions in Russia, and the people are happy and contented. The soil of Canada, therefore, not fertile ground for cultivation by the Communist agitator.

Nevertheless, Canada is not being ignored by the Communists of Russia in their visionary attempt to grasp world power through the overthrow of all institutions of law and order, the destruction of all present forms of government, and the confiscation of all property and other rights of individuals.

The Communist will never be satisfied until he brings about a reign of terror. Communism is a doctrine similar to that created by him in Russia and in certain portions of China. Wherever there is trouble, whether political, social or economic, there the Communist sees his opportunity, and in the past Canada has not been free from manifestations of Communist intrigue and activity. And the Moscow authorities stand ever ready to finance and otherwise support all such efforts.

The Communist leaders realize, however, that they cannot make much headway with the adult populations of Canada, the United States, and the rest of the world. Their only hope is to concentrate their propaganda activities on the young people of the world.

I asked therein, "Is the danger to Canada. If in their youth while their minds are plastic and open to receive impressions, and before their characters are formed, the boys and girls of Canada, or of any country, can be indoctrinated with the virus of Communist disbelief in God and religion, Communist repudiation of all accepted ideas of morality as merely man-made restrictions on individual liberty, Communist rebellion against all constitutional systems of government and courts of law and justice, and Communist doctrine that there is nothing good but everything that is bad in all countries except Russia, for the time being, Communism holds the whip hand and wields a lash over everybody who dares to voice even the mildest criticism of its methods. . . . If, we say, the youth of Canada can be infected with such ideas, then the very foundation of all that we revere and hold dear in Canada today are being very seriously undermined."

Communism is conducting such a campaign in Canada at the present time. The orders of the International Congress, at Moscow, are being carried out to the letter. Communist schools and Soviet Sunday schools are being conducted, the most pernicious literature for children is being circulated, and every conceivable plan to attract the interest of the children is adopted and followed. In an age when there is a youthful tendency to scoff at religion as old-fashioned and out of date, and all religion is openly as well as covertly attacked. Modern youth is encouraged to "go the limit" in throwing off the conventions and restraints of the past, and are ridiculed if they hesitate to do so. The sanctity of the home is insulted, and parents, as well as all other forms of authority repudiated as forms of slavery and a denial of the rights of youth.

The campaign is highly dangerous. It is an insidious campaign, and therein lies its greatest danger because it is so frequently difficult to locate and combat it. . . . But it must be fought right into the open for the ugly thing it is, otherwise grief and sorrow is being prepared for parents and children alike, for the home, the church, and the state.

In setting their faces sternly against this disruptive thing, let the Canadian people be so that no oppression, no injustice, no suffering through poverty or because of lack of work, is allowed anywhere in the Dominion. Let the churches forget their minor differences in doctrine or in forms of worship, and instead of fighting each, unite their forces to end that effective warfare may be waged on a system which, if it is not destroyed, will ultimately destroy all churches and all religion, and in destroying these great bulwarks, destroy also the home and the state, and lead to the damnation of the individual.

Helping Unemployed To Meet Obligations
"Dole" In Britain Has Kept Thousands From Despair
There has always been a great misconception and a great injustice in the characterization of Britain as a far-reaching scheme of national insurance against unemployment as the "Dole." It is no sign of degeneracy or despair. It is rather a sign of strong character. Britain refuses to ignore her unemployed or to pre-

Another Story About Ants

Psychologist Tells How They Extinguish Fire With Formic Acid

Speaking of fire-dreaders, here is a story about ants who act as firemen supported by no less an authority than the Journal of Psychology, edited by Dr. Pierre Jaquet. Internationally known psychologist, of Paris, Marguerite Combes, an entomologist of note, introduced a lighted candle into an ant-hill in the forest of Fontainebleau not far from Paris. A hill of brown ants known as "Formica ruginosa." The ants scurried about a bit and then proceeded to extinguish the flame by squirting formic acid.

These ants are definitely of a higher order than other species inhabiting the forest. In other hills, the ants either became panic-stricken or tried trying to bite the flame. Where they had the intelligence to try to extinguish the fire by acid, they lacked the ability to direct the stream effectively.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Rich, Red Blood To Maintain Good Health

After passing the age of forty every woman has reason to grow anxious about her health. This time of life is often characterized by a lack of fits of depression, its often violent headaches and back pains is slightly relieved by women, but if reasonable steps are taken to safeguard the health, serious effects will be avoided. At this turning point in life, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a helping hand to thousands of suffering women who were very old and feeble, and who had poor health and wasting strength.

Every woman of middle age should take advantage now of the wonderful health-giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are sold by all medicine stores or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Big Demand For Sheep

British Columbia Shows Shipping Thousands To Market

Along with the vastly improved position and prospects of grain farmers, beef cattle men in British Columbia, who held on during lean years, are reaping their reward. Sheep (farmers as usual) are on velvet—sheep have been a commodity good but in British Columbia for years, and appear likely to remain so. Heron flock, with 150 per cent. increase from the lamb crop are shipping between three and four thousand head to market and retaining around one thousand ewe lambs for breeding stock. The demand for sheep is strong and, with more and more farmers getting into the game as big game and farmers greatly turning their attention to sheep in smaller numbers, the temptation to sell is almost irresistible.

People that they do not exist. The people of the home country of the British race has "no" learned the name of their debt. They are paying their debts in the world; they are adjusting themselves to the necessities of the industrial revolution by being with the Great War, they are meeting all their obligations as they come, thus, moral obligations and all.

Not Confined To Canadians

All Subjects Of King George May Cross Border To Work

Living in Canada and working in the United States is the privilege of all British subjects no matter where they hail from. So says the supreme court of the United States. The widespread impression that this privilege is limited to Canadian citizens is wrong. The Jay treaty of 1794, on which the decision rests, does not mention Canadians either native-born or foreign-born. It says that "his majesty's subjects" and "citizens of the United States" shall have the right "freely to pass and repass by land or inland navigation into the respective territory and countries of the two parties on the north and south of the forty-ninth parallel."

The little larva mariposa, who persuaded immigration headquarters, to bar their Canadian neighbors when they dared to work here for a living without using the permission of a union, have done an unwitting service to the cause of international comity and English-speaking friendship.

Going Upstairs

Had to Sit Down Breath So Short

I read you were selling a box of 50c, a box at all drug stores and dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont."

Oil Shale and Tar Sands

Yust Resources Located In Maritime and In Alberta
Canada has vast resources of oil shale and bituminous sands, the former occurring in Maritime Provinces, and the latter in Alberta. These deposits have long been considered as potential sources of products generally obtained from crude petroleum. As a result of recent modifications in refining methods these raw materials may now be seriously considered as sources, to be drawn upon when needed, to help in supplying the rapidly increasing demand for motor fuel.

A wool pool in Alberta is now a possibility. Premier Brownlee met a number of representatives of the industry in the province the other day and the subject was opened up in a preliminary way. It will help come before the executive council for further consideration in the near future, the Government being interested in all co-operative efforts by way of advising and encouraging.

Canadian Arctic Expedition

Wait On The Way To Frozen North, Equipped With Radio
An example of the use of Canadian products by the Canadian Government, in important scientific and exploration work, comes with a report of the departure from Ottawa of the Canadian Arctic Expedition, organized by the Northwest and Yukon Branch of the Canadian Department of the Interior.

The expedition was under the direction of Major L. T. Burwash, well known Canadian Government explorer, who has spent much time in the far North. Press reports this number indicated that Major Burwash was off on one of his solitary jaunts, but the general Canadian Arctic Expedition, according to information from Toronto, left that city in three parties.

All three parties were equipped with Eveready radio "B" batteries on the sets supplied for the expedition by their Department of Marine and Fisheries. Word has reached headquarters of the Canadian National Carbon Company that all branches of this Department are using Canadian National Carbon Company products.

Reports this summer on Major Burwash's activities indicate he was engaged in explorations of unusual scientific interest which promises to yield also an abundance of romance. He planned a jaunt of 5,000 miles by railroad, boat and dog team leading him at the magnetic pole, the trip being planned partly as a hunt for relics of the Arctic expedition of Franklin which ended in disaster in 1845.

Rumor sitting back occasionally from the front of the expedition, one of Franklin's two ships, the Erebus and the Terror, may be sighted in the Arctic Ocean near King William Land or Boothia Peninsula. If the ship can be found the Canadian Government will be enriched by the recovery of old relics and records believed to be aboard her.

Major Burwash also planned to investigate conditions among the Eskimos north of Mackenzie and Repulse and the proposed tractor-train route from Wagner Bay on the West Coast of Hudson Bay to the coast of King William Land.

One of the primary purposes for the expedition assigned by press reports is to determine the seaward shift of the magnetic pole as that mariners' charts may be corrected.

The woman doctor was raving and ranting to an audience of men.

"Women," she shrieked, "at all times have been the backbone of all nations. Who was the world's greatest hero? Helen of Troy, who was the world's greatest martyr? Joan of Arc. Who was the world's greatest ruler? Who, I say, was the world's greatest ruler?"

And simultaneously that entire crowd of men arose and answered in one voice, "My wife!"

THANKSGIVING DAY, NOV. 12
 For peaceful homes and healthful days,
 For all the blindest earth displays,
 We owe the thankfulness and praise,
 Who give us all.

IN MEMORIAM.
 Sleep on, our pal, we don't forget,
 Our battles here race on, we know;
 But memory's dreams remind us yet,
 Of bygone battles, death's deep blow.
 At Ypres, Vimy, Somme and Saino,
 Where you, our pal, gave up your life,
 In dreams we fight them o'er again,
 Those battles where death's sickle rolls.

Sleep on, our pal, your wars are o'er,
 We battle on through life's dark days;
 Our dreams still linger as of yore,
 And through the darkness come love's rays.
 Fond love and tenderness and praise,
 For you who gave all to this race;
 And our hearts know your spirits raise
 Immortal standards in immortal space.

COMPROMISE
 The only final enemies are the good and the bad, the true and the false. These are at odds in every struggle, even though the human share in their warfare may be confused beyond divination. Yet a man is either sure that he fights for the right or he confuses to himself that the right does not concern him and that his loyalties are to be sold for his ambitions. In such strife the sincere man cannot yield unless he first surrenders his convictions; the man with no convictions beyond his own ambitions can and will give ground for what he may get out of it.

Truth is always before the eye of his enemies, and he also with the gates of his citadel, another enemy, who tempts him with the quick peace of compromise. The man who is ready to meet the challenge of the middle ground where defense surrenders all its advantage or will yield a gate or tower under the spur of fear, or to deny the integrity of his city.

Much honest conviction and many institutions built upon it have gone down through such surrender to expediency. Remembering this, clear-sighted and whole-hearted men have small taste for compromise. They fight for their standards or fall beside them and leave to those of lesser faith the hazardous peace of a bargain with the enemy. Were it not for this gallant obstinacy of the free spirit, few things worth while would ever have been won or held for the service of man.

DIFFERING OPINIONS
 (Sudbury Star)
 It is quite natural that persons who have decided on a course of any subject should try to bring everyone else to their way of thinking. In their zeal to vindicate their own opinions many refuse to admit that there may be some virtue in the contentions of those who hold different views.

In cases where the issue is a clear-cut one, involving right and wrong, it may be that an uncompromising attitude is justified. But who can say just what is right and what is wrong? Ideas concerning right and wrong change with the times. Not so many years ago some of the most cultured and enlightened people in the world believed human slavery was legitimate and proper. Many prominent men in the day were large slave owners. The practice is thought wrong today, and they passed a law prohibiting him from doing so. It is just permissible and right today.

If everyone had agreed with such ideas and no one had ever mustered up the courage to combat them, the world would have made little progress. People would still be burning witches.

What is needed in the world is not that all should think alike, but that one should have a greater feeling of tolerance and respect for the opinions of others when honestly held, no matter how much they may differ from our own.

The average normal person is really seeking for the truth, but the truth is often elusive, and each must find it in his own way.

VALUE OF FALL-AND WINTER PRECIPITATION
 (Experimental Farms Note)
 An appreciable increase in the amount of soil moisture is generally considered to result from the winter's snowfall, but investigation shows this to be true to only a very limited extent and under certain conditions.

In some of the wheat growing areas of Russia a large part of the annual precipitation falls as snow. Over these areas the moisture supply is by no means plentiful for crop growth so that various methods have been tried to catch the snow and thus increase the available water supply. The results, however, have not proved very satisfactory. As long as the ground remains frozen, water will run off the surface.

A study of soil moisture has been made for several years at the Dominion Experimental Station at Swift Current, Sask. Experiments have been made to determine the moisture changes in soil when snow is deep and when left fallow. The method used has been to measure the variations in weight of a mass of soil. As the weight of the soil itself remains constant, any variations recorded must be due to an increase or decrease in the amount of water present.

The spring of 1936 afforded an excellent opportunity for measuring the effect of the previous winter's snow on the soil moisture. Between the time of the last observation in 1935 and the first in 1936, almost all of the precipitation was in the form of snow, the actual amounts being 20.6 inches of snow and 0.21 inch of rain. In addition to this, more snow was swept in by the wind from adjoining lands, so that the soil used in the experiments was buried under a considerable depth of snow. In spite of this, the soil moisture content, none was conserved in the soil. The soil was in identical the same condition in the spring, as far as its moisture content was concerned as in the previous fall. In only one season, since the experiments were started, has any appreciable proportion of the fall and winter precipitation been conserved in the soil.

The results secured at Swift Current support the belief that any increase in soil moisture during the fall and winter months is due to the rain which fell while the land was in an unfrozen condition. The presence of a considerable depth of snow may not indicate any beneficial effect on the soil as a source of available moisture.

HEROES OF THE LIGHT BRIGADE

Although the famous charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava, immortalized by Tennyson, occurred 74 years ago, on October 25, 1854, the last survivor of that "gallant six hundred" died only recently. He was Edwin Hughes, a sergeant major, who until his death received assistance from a special fund raised for veterans of that historic charge, which was an incident of the Crimean War, in which Turkey, with aid from Britain, France and Sardinia, defeated Russia.

The Light Brigade, composed of 673 British cavalrymen, charged the Russian field artillery over a distance of a mile and a half, losing 347 men and 49 horses in 20 minutes. They cut down many of the Russian gunners, but were forced to retreat in disorder. Their dauntless exploit raised the morale of the British, however, and diminished that of the Russians.

A few days later, at the battle of Inkerman on November 6th, 5,000 British held 50,000 Russians at bay in a hand-to-hand conflict until the French arrived and routed the enemy. Thus, after a year's siege, during which the allied forces had told hardships, the great fort of Sebastopol was evacuated by the Russians and the war ended. It was during this siege, the Florence Nightingale organized the first nursing system in military hospitals. Thus, while the charge of the Light Brigade was unsuccessful, it was a moral victory which probably turned the tide of war against the forces of the Tsar. It was a stirring memory that Edwin Hughes carried with him during his long life.
